AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER?

This celebrated picture by J. C. Dollman has been presented to the board of education of New York by Alfred Mossy. The painting represents a scene on the Thames embankment, London. Three figures seated at one end of the bench are a family which, unable to earn a livelihood in the country, make their way to the city. A fourth figure is a discharged soldier, with a war medal on his breast, which he refuses to pawn even at the expense of suffering the exposure of a bitter winter night. At the other end of the bench are three unskilled workers without money or occupation. This picture tells its own story better than words ever could.

Dr. Parkhurst On The Tale of Tragedy Told In a Great Picture

"Am I My Brother's Keeper?" A Powerful Appeal to the More Fortunate Ones to Aid the Helpless and Hopeless.

THAT Mr. Mossy should make the board of education the recipient of his gift of Mr. Dollman's picture, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" means that it is within the province of education, broadly understood, to efface from social and industrial life the widespread, despairing helplessness which it is the purpose of the picture to portray.

The painting was presented, in an address, by Mr. Roosevelt at the De Witt Clinton High school last Friday afternoon, and was received and interpreted in terms of exceeding delicacy and appreciation by Miss Leventritt, chairman of the committee on vocational schools and industrial training.

The painting represents a scene on the Thames embankment, London. Three figures seated at one end of a bench are those of unskilled workers without money or occupation. A fourth figure is that of a discharged soldier, with a war medal on his breast, which he refuses to pawn even at the expense of suffering the exposure of a bitter winter night.

At the other end of the bench is a man from the country with his wife and child, who has wandered into the city in fruitless pursuit of work.

The appeal of the helpless and the hopeless is a strong one. The entire scene represents the helplessness and hopelessness of unskilled labor, and is an appeal to human sympathy to destroy the despair by removing its cause and to give the worker an opportunity to work by teaching him how to work.

By giving to the painting the title that it bears the artist proceeds on the distinctly Christian principle, that by helping to qualify men for remunerative service we are only doing what it belongs to us to do.

That it is not an act of charity, but of debt, and that the fraternal relation to each other makes it a matter of holy obligation for the more favored members to make their own superior opportunities a means of capitalizing such as are put under any kind of disadvantage.

In such a country as ours, at any rate, there is work for all those who know how to do it, provided only they know how to do it well.

Save in exceptional seasons, skilled labor is not obliged to beg. And it is to our schools that we have to look to the institution for furnishing industrial equipment. Private enterprise can do something, but can cover the ground only inadequately. Men who are too old to learn will have to get along the best they can, but their sons and daughters should be taken hold of early, and with a kind but firm hand.

The fundamental service that our schools can render is to qualify boys and girls to stand on their own feet and make their own independent way in the world; and that means familiarity with some remunerative kind of employment.

The more that can be added to vocational training the better, but a man's fundamental necessity is to know how to exist, to know how to secure the development of red corpuscles in the blood and to keep breath in his body without having to go to the almshouse for it.

And society owes it to itself, as well as to its individual members, to see

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedial measures, which is done by the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a running ear or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; this comes out of ten cases caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

LIQUID CURES ECZEMA WHERE SALV'S FAIL

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this: Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

A simple wash. A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D. D. D. Prescription. This penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

A 25-cent trial bottle will start the cure, and give you instant relief.

that that is done. Whatever our schools may accomplish in fitting pupils for higher grades of service, most of those pupils will upon graduation work at the ordinary levels of service, and it is to that class, therefore, that prime attention requires to be given.

As an illustration of this principle, superintendent Maxwell, on the occasion above referred to, insisted on the advantage that would accrue to society if the state or the city would purchase land and set it apart for purposes of agricultural training.

It is in the land, after all, that furnishes the basis of our material prosperity as a nation.

But that, and other expedients which might be mentioned, serves only as an application of the principle for which we are contending—that those who are in circumstances of disadvantage have an absolute right to look to their more favored brothers for relief.

The question that was asked a good many centuries ago: "Am I my brother's keeper?" Christianity answers in the affirmative.

It is not in keeping with our Christian profession that there should be any boy or girl growing toward maturity life without being so equipped as to have a fair fighting chance in the competition of life. It is not simply a matter of duty, but also one of privilege.

That is all involved in sincere brotherhood, which feels another's burdens as being our own burdens; other's limitations as though they were our own handicaps.

It is to be believed that the occasion at De Witt Clinton High school dignified as it was by the presence of Mr. Roosevelt and marked by the appeal made to the distinguished audience by the scene standing silently before us wrought out upon canvas, will be an impulse stimulating the board of education, and through them the public at large, to give practical effect to the appeal and to help actualize the brotherly relation subsisting among all of the Heavenly Father's children.—Copyright, 1911, National News Association.

YOUTH HAS KNIFE WITH LONG BLADE AND IS HELD

Clyde Clifton, a seventeen-year-old boy, who came to El Paso to join the insurgents was hungry Wednesday. He approached chief of detectives J. C. Stansel and asked him for the price of a meal. Instead he was taken to the city jail for a feed. There, a knife with a six inch blade was found on his person and now he is held while the detectives attempt to ascertain where he got the knife.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN IN JAIL.

Greensburg, Pa., May 25.—Nine girls and women of Westmoreland City, said to be wives and daughters of striking miners, are prisoners in the county jail here, serving 20 days sentences on charges of having disturbed the peace. Some of the prisoners have children at home and others are under 15 years.

CHILDREN'S PLAY BECOMES SERIOUS

A Globe Mother Finds Two Little Ones Almost Suffocated.

Globe, Ariz., May 25.—Hiding in a china closet in play very nearly resulted in the death of two little daughters of Mrs. R. L. Sutton.

When Mrs. Sutton found her two little girls locked up in separate compartments of the closet in a vacant house, one in an unconscious condition, the other nearly unconscious, she became almost a badly frightened as the children had been frightened a few minutes previous, when they first found themselves in trouble.

Beatrice, aged 7, and Lillian, aged 5, had been missing for about 20 or 30 minutes when their mother called them. Not finding them anywhere around the yard Mrs. Sutton went to look for them in the vacant house on the adjoining lot, where the children were in the habit of playing. Upon entering the house she fancied she heard muffled cries, but a hurried search of the rooms revealed no trace of them.

The cries apparently continuing but much more subdued she went over the house a second time, but the cries had ceased, and thinking she had been mistaken she started through the dining room in order to leave the house when she noticed a small drawer above a pair of doors was pushed out several inches and a sudden movement within caused her to look sharply.

To her consternation she saw a little hand sticking out. Hurriedly opening the doors she found Beatrice in an almost strangled condition. Quickly pulling her out she also opened the other doors on the other side and found Lillian unconscious, and in a much more dangerous condition.

In their play Beatrice had pushed Lillian into the compartment and closed the door. Thinking this great fun she immediately crowded into the other and pulled the door shut upon herself. The compartments were almost airtight and in their struggles for breath they had almost torn their clothes from their bodies. Had the doors been open a few moments longer they would undoubtedly have perished, for when found, the children were helplessly strangling.

Socials Mark the Close of the Schools

El Paso Teachers Scatter in All Directions for Vacation.

Teachers in El Paso schools having decided upon their plans for the summer, are now packing preparatory to leaving on their vacations, the matter of relocations having been settled by the school board. In several of the schools, delightful little parties have been held during the past few days, several of them partaking of the nature of luncheons.

Highland Park school, and Mrs. B. R. Bailey, principal of the Mesa school, have been the recipients of many social honors from the teachers, as both are to retire from school work. Miss Humphrey, become bride and Mrs. Bailey to make a trip to Europe and rest.

On Wednesday noon the teachers of Mesa school and the special teachers of the city gave a luncheon to Mrs. Bailey, the retiring principal of Mesa school.

The luncheon was given in the large domestic science room and the beautifully decorated tables were placed in the form of a V.

The teachers were all standing at their places when Mrs. Bailey was escorted into the room, where she received resounding applause for her delicious luncheon and a handsome alligator traveling bag was presented to Mrs. Bailey by the teachers.

She responded most graciously and expressed her surprise and appreciation.

Mrs. Bailey is greatly loved and popular and she will be greatly missed by pupils and teachers alike, as she quits school work after this year.

Those attending the luncheon were: Miss Lida Jones, Dixie Fassett, Lulu Jones, Ellison, Mary Pool, Elizabeth Page, Swann, Elliott, Wilberger, Nell Lyons, Sallie Blake, Wilson, Robb, McCrery, Lott, Flynn, Hester, Mrs. Lee in Moore, Mrs. Victoria Whitmer, Mrs. Mae, Miss Sallie Page, Miss Le Baron, Miss Fannie Henning, Mrs. Murphy, Miss Roger, Mrs. George Le Baron, Mrs. Bailey, Miss Gough.

GATUN DAM IS THE WORLD'S GREATEST

Each section pumps mounted on concrete barges. These pump it far out of the bed of the canal into the jungles and swamps.

After the alluvial soil is washed off and pumped out, the remaining 1,500,000 cubic yards of rock will be blasted and removed by steam shovels. In the last stretch of the canal inside the shore line on the Pacific side it is necessary to do subaqueous blasting. A barge is fitted up with a large battery of well drills, and with these a series of holes is made, in which heavy charges of dynamite are placed and fired by electrical connection.

At Balboa the canal diggers literally are damming back the Pacific ocean. There is a little island five miles out in Panama bay known as Naos island. A dike from the mainland to this island has been built four miles of the way. This dike is parallel to the axis of the canal and is to act as a breakwater. An artificial peninsula five miles long and hundreds of feet wide is a novel sight.
